EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The subproject "Increasing Awareness on Gender Sensitivity, Women Rights, Violence Against Women and Human Trafficking in the Typhoon Bopha Affected Communities of Davao Oriental" was implemented by Child Alert Mindanao, Inc. with the purpose to prevent incidents of gender based violence and trafficking of persons in the Typhoon affected communities in upland and coastal Barangays of the Municipalities of Boston and Cateel. After three months of implementation, the subproject was able to create a pool of 20 community educators, nine of which were from Boston and 11 from Cateel, Davao Oriental. The educators assisted the subproject by conducting community education sessions which commenced on the 3rd week of June and culminated on the first week of September 2014. In the Municipality of Boston, 48 community education sessions were successfully conducted reaching out to 1 890 persons. Males and boys accounted for 33 percent, while females and girls accounted for 67 percent. Three sessions were added in Boston compared to the original target due to the expressed need of the high school students. In the Municipality of Cateel, the 75 conducted community education sessions have reached out to 2 632 persons with 25 percent (668) males and 16 percent (436) boy participants, 40 percent female (1 052) and 18 percent Girls (476). The coverage of the two municipalities reached a total of 4 522 participants. Males and boys comprised 38 percent while females and girls comprised 62 percent. The primary participants were beneficiaries and workers of the International Labour Organization (ILO) such as recipients of the Food and Agriculture Organization, and workers from the Davao Oriental Electric Cooperative, CFC-Taytayan Multi-Purpose Cooperative, and Baganga Electricians Association, among others. Other targeted participants were from the schools, namely pupils and students, Barangay functionaries, members of the youth organizations, and members of the Pantawid Pamilya Pilipino Program (4Ps).

The subproject also conducted an education-on-the-air program for a two-month period through the Frendz radio station in Cateel, Davao Oriental. This program expanded the reach of the campaign against gender-based violence (GBV) and Trafficking in Persons (TIP) to other Barangays and towns in the province that were not covered by the sub-project. The one-hour block time every Saturday morning reached a wider audience in the communities that did not have the opportunity to physically attend community education sessions. The more or less 10 text messages received by the anchor person every air time only showed that there were considerable listeners of the program. It did not only educate the wider audience but also enhanced the skills of the community educators in radio hosting and anchoring. In addition, the air time fee paid to the local radio station amounting to Php 5 000.00 (US$ 114.44) which contributed to the local economy, mainly supporting the establishment. On top of the activities implemented, the sub-project also generated short term employment for the 20 community educators with a combined total of 955 hours spent as facilitators of the community sessions or equivalent to 119 working days. On the personal level, the sub-project enhanced the facilitating skills of the community educators and at the same time augmented their income during the 3-month period. Each community educator received at least Php 7 000 or US$ 160.00 for the conduct of the community education sessions.

Moreover, the sum of Php 184 500.00 or US$ 4 221.00 that was spent for provision of snacks during the conduct of the 123 sessions contributed to the economic activity of the people's organizations in the two Municipalities. The peoples' organizations managed the preparation and distribution of snacks during sessions. Likewise, the Php 123 000.00 or US$ 2 814.16 budget for the transportation expenses of the community educators in the conduct of the 123 sessions augmented the income of the locals especially the drivers of the motorcycles. Notably, the community educators were able to reach the areas targeted for the community education sessions by riding motorcycles driven by locals which is the only means of transportation going to the barangays. The sub-project, indeed, has benefited both individual residents and the community as a whole. Women in particular learned about their rights including knowledge on where to go if their rights are violated. Communities became aware that there are laws that protect women and children against abuse and exploitation. Consequently, the sub-project in modest ways facilitated a change in the outlook and perceptions of residents about gender and rights of women. More importantly, it built the courage of a good number of women to stand up for their rights and report incidents of gender-based violence either as victims or as witnesses to abuse. The sub-project held a culmination program on September 3, 2014 in the Municipality of Cateel and on September 4, 2014 in the Municipality of Boston. 337 persons (Males: 127, Females: 210) attended the culmination program in Cateel while 137 persons (Males: 29, Females: 108) attended in Boston. The activity was conducted in partnership with the Municipal Inter-Agency Council Against Trafficking and Violence Against Women and their Children (MIACAT-VAWC) in both Municipalities. It was a symposium type activity which was attended by representatives of the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DWSD)-Regional Office, members of the Provincial Task on Women and Children Concerns PTFWCC, the Philippine National Police (PNP) Women and Children Protection Desk (WCPD) and other local stakeholders. The Municipal Local Government Operations Officer (MLGOO) of Cateel and Boston was the resource person. The activity provided an opportunity to establish partnership among the government line agencies present particularly in terms of sustaining the gains of the sub-project from various levels starting from the Municipal to the Province and to the Regional level. One of the highlights of the separate culminating activities in both municipalities was the poster making contest which attracted the participation of many children and the youth coming from the different schools within the above mentioned municipalities. The contestants were made to express in graphics and colors their understanding of the activity's theme: "Paminaw, Pagtuon ug Pagpakabana batok sa GBV ug Human Trafficking" (Listen, Learn and Do Something Against GBV and Human Trafficking).

BACKGROUND

Typhoon Bopha with local name Typhoon Pablo swept across eastern Mindanao on 04 December 2012 bringing along monster winds and heavy rains resulting to flash floods and landslides that devastated coastal and upland communities. The UN joint assessment teams reported 100 percent destruction in many of these areas. Houses and crops were totally damaged or washed away. Over a thousand people died and more than 800 people are reportedly still missing according to the National Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Council (NDRRMC).

Of the 5.4 million affected by Typhoon Pablo, over 2 million are children. The means of livelihood and survival of an estimated 2.3 million Filipino workers were severely devastated according to the International Labor Organization (ILO) and majority of those affected by the vast destruction are women, youth aged 15 to 24, and unpaid family workers.

In the first few months of the typhoon Pablo humanitarian response, 79 cases of gender-based-violence (GBV) were reported requiring urgent and sustained action from all humanitarian actors to prevent further incidence and respond to such cases. According to the Davao Oriental GBV sub-cluster, 19 cases of rape, human trafficking and minors in commercial sex work have been reported in province from December 2012 to January 2013. Prior to the disaster, the Reception and Diagnostic Centre of Davao Oriental recorded only 50 GBV cases over a period of 71 months (from 2007 to November 2012). The reporting of and follow-up to these cases were made possible through better GBV prevention and response coordination systems established in the typhoon-affected community in the two provinces. (Humanitarian Bulletin Philippines, issue 12 February 16-28, 2013)

The Child Protection Working Groups (CPWG) and Gender-based Violence Sub Clusters (GBVSC) including local partners at the regional, provincial and municipal levels immediately manifested strong collaborative efforts to provide effective and efficient responses to the GBV and child protection concerns that surfaced as an aftermath of typhoon Pablo. There are certain gaps however that still need to be bridged to ensure that women and children are guaranteed with safety and security at all times.

Based on the Child Protection Rapid Assessment (CPRA), child protection and GBV coordination remain at a premium considering the geographical scope of the affected areas and the different capacities of the actors involved. The Provincial and Municipal Councils Against Trafficking in Persons - Violence Against Women and Children (P/MCAT-VAWCs) in the affected areas have also limited functionality to adequately serve as coordinating and monitoring bodies for the implementation of the key legislation protecting women and children. Meanwhile, the ground personnel of the Philippine National Police - Women and Children Protection Desks have limited human resources and professional skills to respond to CP and GBV issues.

There were interventions from various non-governmental organizations to increase public awareness; however, there remained a relatively insufficient understanding at the community level about the risk of trafficking and GBV as well as issues on health and justice. At the same time, there is a limited knowledge in affected communities of the referral pathways and community protection structures such as the Violence Against Women and Children (VAWC) Desks, the Barangay Councils for the Protection of Children (BCPCs) and other mechanisms for Child protection and prevention of GBV.

OBJECTIVES AND EXPECTED OUTPUT

1. Objectives

The general objective of the sub-project is to contribute to the prevention of gender based violence and trafficking in persons in Typhoon Pablo affected communities in upland and coastal barangays of the municipalities of Boston and Cateel.

The specific objectives are the following:

1. Increase community awareness on gender sensitivity, women rights, violence against women and human trafficking in post-typhoon situation
2. Popularize the referral system using the multi-sectoral response services at the community level.
3. Introduce the community-based protection structures and mechanisms for children and women at the community level.

2. Expected Outputs

- a. 3 600 persons adequately understood the issues on gender sensitivity, women rights, violence against women and human trafficking and can articulate some laws that violate women and children rights.
- b. The referral system using the multi-sectoral response services are popularized in the communities.

NARRATIVE REPORT

Perspectives on implementation

The target deliverable of the sub-project within the period was successfully attained and even exceeded targets. The target number of sessions per municipality had been achieved and the target number of participants for and every municipality had been reached and even went beyond its original target by 17 percent for Cateel and 40 percent for Boston.

Although the sub-project focused on training and community education, its added value was the injection of cash into the local economy through the wages given to the community educators, and procurement of goods and services in the municipalities covered by the project.

The radio program, on the other hand, increased the number of persons reached by the project and contributed in popularizing the issue on gender based violence and human trafficking.

In addition, the sub-project generated short term employment to 20 community educators who facilitated community education sessions totaling to 119 working days in the two municipalities. Consequently, it augmented the income of the said community educators with each of them receiving an average of Php 7 000.00 or US$ 160 during the three-month period.

The Community Sessions became venues where women and men, parents and Barangay residents gathered to reflect on the issues on human rights and gender which affected family and community relationships. It increased the residents' understanding and improved their child rearing practices in their treatment of children both in the home and in the school. It became an occasion for the residents to realize that many child rearing practices that are considered normal disciplinary actions physical punishment and verbal abuse are in fact violation of the rights of children. And what has been considered normal treatment of women (like husbands beating their wives when drunk) are likewise violation of their rights. The Community have realized that there were laws that protect women and children. The community education sessions became instrumental in surfacing old and new cases of GBV in different communities. The participants of the sessions can now identify different forms or types of Gender-based violence. Community residents also learned where to report specific cases of gender-based violence. Moreover, community residents learned about the referral pathways for cases of Gender-based violence starting from the Barangay to the MSWDO and to the PNP-WCPD. Meanwhile, school Children have learned about the rights of children and can now identify various forms of violence against children.

The sub-project has developed the capacities of the 20 community educators to facilitate with confidence about topics on Gender Sensitivity, women and Children Rights, Human Trafficking and can be tapped as resource persons on any activity related to GBV and human trafficking in their own localities.

Issues and actions
Examine the main challenges facing the delivery of outputs and achievement of immediate objectives. These can be issues that have already been encountered or are foreseen.	There were target participants from the ILO local partner organizations who were not able to attend the scheduled community education sessions because they were looking for other income opportunities. In some instances during the community education sessions conducted in the Barangay, some of the ILO-contracted beneficiaries, wrote in the attendance sheets not as members of their organization but as beneficiaries of 4Ps, or their being barangay functionaries simply as residents. However, about 70 percent of the ILO target participants have attended the community education sessions. There were scheduled community education sessions that had to be postponed and re-scheduled because participants were not available due to conflict of schedules of activities in the Barangay and other activities organized by other organizations. There were venues of the community education sessions that were very far and remote and needed more time to travel. This has shortened the stay of the community educators and reduced their time to integrate with the participants. And this has also limited the opportunities of the community educators to gather more information on the cases of Gender-based Violence. The referral system from the community level to the Municipal level needs further strengthening and follow-up. Though there were discussions during the community education sessions about the referral systems, but the Barangay structures and mechanisms for protection are still weak. Even the hotline numbers for reporting of cases that were introduced during the sessions were personal mobile phones of the personnel of the Municipal Social Welfare and Development Officers (MSWDOs) of Boston and Cateel, Davao Oriental.
Explain corrective actions taken or to be taken regarding implementation challenges, delayed delivery, and the low probability of achieving immediate objectives.	Constant communications had to be made constantly with the local focal persons regarding follow-up of project activities. Ms. Vicenta Abella for Cateel and Ms. Maricel Dacuycuy for Boston have played the big roles in the direct supervision of the subproject implementation. Regular visit, monitoring and personal interaction with beneficiaries also provided inputs to the project management team to help guide the community educators. Updating and consultation regarding subproject implementation with key UNFPA and ILO personnel provided the strategic guidance to the subproject implementation. Discussion is conducted with the Municipal Social Welfare and Development Office (MSWDO), Philippine National Police-Women and Children Protection Desks (PNP-WCPD), Municipal Local Government Operations Officer (MLGOO) to strengthen the Municipal Inter-agency Council Against Trafficking - Violence Against Women and their Children (MIACAT-VAWC) at the Municipal level and the Barangay Council for the Protection of Children (BCPC) Violence Against Women (VAW) desks at the Barangay level.
Briefly explain any reformulations of project immediate objectives or outputs, and their corresponding indicators and targets.	The subproject objectives was not revised, but some activities and strategies were added to further popularize the campaign. The radio program was not in the original proposal but this was added to the subproject activities. Upon discussions with the community educators, a radio program would contribute so much to achieve the project objectives and hence the decision to undertake "radio on air" program. Expectedly, the radio program became instrumental in educating a wider audience who otherwise could not be reached by Community Education sessions. The symposium type as a culmination activity of the campaign was also not included in the original proposal but it was recommended by the Community Educators who felt the need to have one in order to have a formal closure of the subproject in the community.

Briefly describe any evaluations, project reviews, self-assessments or undertaken, including follow-up to findings and recommendations.	The monitoring of the program staff and the sharing of subproject implementation experiences among the trained community educators in the actual facilitation of the community education sessions were venues for self-assessment of the subproject. The de-briefing and coaching sessions every after community education sessions among Community Educators, have in way provided the venue to harness the facilitation skills of the educators and also became occasions to discuss and address the problems they encountered during the conduct of the community education sessions.

IMMEDIATE OBJECTIVE ACHIEVEMENT CLASSIFICATION^d

<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Highly probable Almost all (>80%) reporting period milestones have been met. Based on the indicators, it is highly probable all immediate objectives will be achieved by the end of the project.	<input type="checkbox"/> Probable The majority (60-80%) of reporting period milestones have been met. Based on the indicators, it is probable the majority of immediate objectives will be achieved.
<input type="checkbox"/> Low probability Some (40-60%) reporting period milestones have been. Limited progress is being made on the immediate objectives and based on the indicators only a few immediate objectives will be achieved.

A number of factors contributed to the successful implementation of the subproject and hence, the immediate objective. For one, the openness of the communities to participate in learning activities such as the community education sessions was a factor to the awakening of the people about very relevant issues affecting social relationships and family dynamics and community life. Another factor was the relevance of GBV and trafficking topics to the target audience particularly the women and the children. They were able to easily relate to the topic on a personal level. The timing of the project was also a factor. Stress and anxiety brought by typhoon Bopha (Pablo) as an aftermath and the gradual path to recovery of the community may in some ways reinforced gender injustice leading to abuse of vulnerable women and children. And the subproject came at an opportune time. Meanwhile, the primary targets being peoples' organizations supported by the ILO contributed much to the success of the subproject. Being members of the peoples' organization, the target audience immediately manifested cooperation to the subproject implementation. The commitment and passion of the community educators factored in to the quality and the wide effect of the subproject. Equipped with ample knowledge, skills and dedication, the project was able to create a better environment for women and children.

All the major activities were successfully conducted with the reached number of participants of the community education sessions is more than the original target which showed that the subproject has reached wider audiences.

7. Lessons learned
Describe any lessons, positive and negative, that have been learned during project implementation. Organise the lessons using the headings below.
Context and implementing environment	The partner organizations of the ILO understood the subproject as part of the entire project intervention strategy. The partner agencies of the CAM like the MSWDO, PNP-WCPD, MLGOO also appreciated the project intervention and have expressed their support and participation.
Project strategy and design	The original subproject design was limited on the training of community educators and thereafter the actual conduct of community education sessions by the trained community educators. The add-on radio program and the culminations activities were thought as necessary activities to reach out more audience and provide closure of the project intervention respectively. The subproject design has limited intervention in the strengthening of the Barangay and Municipal Structures because of the given period of time. Although there were efforts made to convene the MIACAT-VAWC but it was not enough in a given short period of time.

* Based on Risk Register

Advocacy, Communications and Capacity building	The capacitation of the 20 community educators has played a big role in the actual conduct of the community education sessions. They can now be invited as resource persons on GBV and TIP topics in their respective communities. The de-briefing and coaching sessions of the community educators not only enhanced and developed their facilitation skills but also provided the feedback systems of the project implementation. The radio program is one good strategy in advocating the issues on GBV and TIP or other issues therein. It has reached wider audience. The information, education and communication materials like the tarpaulin and fan bearing the theme: "Paminaw, Pagtuon ug Pagpakabana Batok sa GBV ug Human Trafficking" has helped in popularizing the campaign. (Listen, Learn and do something against GBV and Human Trafficking)
Implementation and Institutional Arrangements	The direct contracting of CAM from ILO was a big factor in the smooth facilitation of the funds and achieving the targets. The presence of the ILO office in the Cateel has added the easy coordination of the subproject implementation between CAM and ILO in the field.
Any other areas	The captive audience or participants from the members of the ILO-contracted organizations was big factor in achieving the substantial number of participants in the actual conduct of community education sessions. The role of the trained community educators played a big role in achieving the target number of participants during the community education sessions within the given target period. The commitment and hours that they spent in facilitating the sessions has greatly contributed the success of the project. The radio program, on the other hand, has contributed in popularizing the campaign on prevention of the GBV and TIP in the far flung communities reached by the radio signal. The acceptance and active participation of the government line agencies like Municipal Social Welfare and Development Office (MSWDO), Municipal Local Government Office (MLGO), Philippine National Police- Women and Children Protection Office (PNP-WCPD) have significantly contributed to the success of the project deliverables. However, the structures that the project envisioned to sustain the campaign still need to be strengthened. The Barangay Council for Protection of Children (BCPC) and Violence Against Women (VAW) desks and the Municipal Council Against Trafficking and Violence Against Women and their children (MIACAT-VAWC) still need more intervention. These are the structures mandated by law to look into the issues and concerns of the women and children.
